DUNNES STRIKE IN SOUTH: WHAT'S AT ISSUE?

THE STRIKE of Dunnes Stores in the South should be of great interest to Dunnes workers in the North.

The strikers are fighting for:

■ No compulsory Sunday working: Dunnes Stores have recruited a lot of part-timers and are demanding that they work Sunday on a flat-rate. The union wants to get double time for Sundays.

■ An end to 'zero hour' contracts: Workers can be asked to work at any time by management—but they are not given guaranteed hours. The union wants proper part-time contracts with definite hours and more full time jobs.

The Dunnes workers in the South are getting tremendous support. Nearly all the shops have been closed because customers and workers in delivery companies will not pass pickets.

If they win, it will help Dunnes workers in the North. In some shops, Dunnes have an agreement with the ATGWU—but in many places there is no union.

With the announcement of competition from Wellworths, you can be sure that Dunnes will be pushing for more low paid part time jobs.

Now is the time to get organised to win proper conditions for Dunnes workers throughout the North.

WHAT YOU CAN DO:

■ Organise your job now into the union. Get forms from the local ATGWU or SIPTU.

■ Take up a collection and send it to the MANDATE union in Dublin.
